The mark is a three-second sound mark whose musical notation is as shown in the representation on the notification of international registration. The instruments in the upper register (flute, clarinet, horns, trumpets, violins, and violas) do an abrupt crescendo on a D major chord. By contrast, the lower register, covered by the cellos, basses, and left hand of the piano, hold an E, causing tension. The piano does a quick triplet run up a D major scale, leaping by a sixth from B to F#, at the same time the lower register moves down a whole step to a D. This leap in the piano emphasizes the resolution of the low notes coming into a consonant harmony with the upper.
