Mark Clause(s):

The trade mark is a movement mark consisting of a sequence of thirty four images as shown in the representation on the form of application lasting 5 seconds in total. The sequence starts from the top left corner moving across to the far right, returning to the second left row and moving across again to the far right, continuing in this order from left to right before ending with the thirty fourth frame in the last row. The sequence of movement begins with a white butterfly-shaped figure on a black background followed by a downwards dipping of the neck of the butterfly-shaped figure. The upper two corners of the butterfly-shaped figure become thinner and the lower two corners become thicker before shrinking towards the centre until it becomes a regular circle in the ninth image. The lower part of the circle splits to the left and right in the tenth image while two protrusions arise on the upper part of the circle. The two lower corners taper away from each other towards the left and right while the upper two protrusions form two corners splitting to the left and right respectively before becoming a butterfly-shaped figure. The lower left corner moves towards the centre while the upper left corner tapers diagonally upwards to the left. The upper right corner bulges towards the right while the upper left and bottom corners become thicker respectively. A corner appears in the bottom right-hand corner in the twenty fourth image before the four corners become thicker and the centre becomes narrower forming a butterfly-shaped figure tilted downwards at an angle to the left in the twenty sixth image. The left-hand part of the butterfly-shaped figure becomes thinner while the right-hand part becomes thicker before forming a distorted triangle in the twenty ninth image. The right-hand part of the distorted triangle bulges downwards to the right to form a square in the last image of the sequence.
